

If I decide to “opt out,” will I still receive offers and information about other products and services offered by MetLife companies?

Even if you “opt out,” any MetLife company that is fortunate to have you as a customer may continue to send you offers and information about all of the products and services that the MetLife companies offer. You may also continue to receive offers and information from any MetLife representative you already have a relationship with or indirectly from others, such as your employer, or a professional association that you belong to. In addition, you may receive offers as a result of your information appearing on a mailing list that is compiled from public information.

If I decide to “opt out,” can my agent still tell me about other products and services that I might be interested in?

Yes. Your agent can continue to tell you about special offers, as well as other products and services that may be of interest to you as you work toward achieving your financial goals. In addition, your agent can continue to answer your questions about products and services.
